As Pet Society® has always been a pro-active company regarding social responsibility, it could be no different with environmental issues. We know that the Amazonian richness cannot and should not be explored carelessly, unless it is ecologically correct, socially fair and economically viable, which means through sustainable development.

To do so, the raw materials, fruits and seeds used in our products are extracted from the forest through methods, which harmonize traditional customs of the local population with modern techniques of handling natural resources, turning the forest into a renewable and sustainable source of wealth.
